

Highlights

- A forgeable identity tag turns certification into a nonlinear population flow
- In-group conduct is a security parameter: forgery tolerance 0.866 versus 0.400
- The protective fine diverges as forgery becomes undetectable
- Behavioural mimics hollow out the tag before conduct ever degrades
- The flow is bistable, so certification buys robustness and not a safer level